The MoU is intended to serve as a framework for cooperation in sharing legal knowledge between HBKU and the center. In doing so, both parties are charting a course to promote innovative thinking in academic and professional pursuits in the field of legal studies and judicial practices, thereby helping in preparing a new generation that is legally equipped.

The MoU was officially signed by Ms. Fatima Abdulaziz Bilal, director of the Legal and Judicial Studies Center at the Ministry of Justice, and Ms. Maryam Al Mannai, HBKU's vice president of students affairs, at the HBKU Student Center in Education City, alongside other members of senior management.

Commenting on the MoU, Ms. Maryam Al Mannai said: "As a leading research University, we are committed to forming strategic partnerships that enrich the overall experience of our students while creating lasting value through knowledge sharing for the greater academic and professional community in Qatar. HBKU places significant emphasis on such partnerships to successfully deliver on its promise to provide students with a truly exceptional and holistic experience through its various multidisciplinary programs."

With the agreement in place, HBKU and the center will begin to collaborate on a variety of activities. Speaking at the event, Ms. Fatima Abdulaziz Bilal, the director of the Legal and Judicial Studies Center at the Ministry of Justice, said: "The MoU is part of the Ministry of Justice's commitment to improving legal and judicial training in the country, resulting in a strong foundation of cooperation in legal training that supports the goals set forth by the Qatar National Vision 2030."

Highlighting the important role of HBKU in the agreement, she continued: "Despite being an emerging university, HBKU has managed to swiftly assert itself in the research and education fields in Qatar, a significant achievement for a young institution. The MoU between the two parties will yield substantial results, as it will capitalize on the strength and resources of both organizations."

The center, with its distinguished legal expertise, is one of the most respected legal institutions in Qatar. It is responsible for supporting Qatar's aim by helping to equip professionals with skills needed for a variety of fields, including adjudication, public prosecution, legal practice, and more.

Under the established framework, both parties will jointly organize and host events regularly, including symposia, seminars, workshops, and guest lectures, to promote dialogue between those who study, research, and practice law in Qatar.

Creating a space for the exchange of knowledge between students at HBKU and the center, along with engaging the wider legal community, will inform and help develop local procedures that ultimately contribute towards the development goals of the nation within the legal field and beyond.
